BY TRAIN TO CROATIA

Train is a great way to travel, and if you want to avoid flying to Croatia, it is perfectly possible and very pleasurable to travel by Croatia by train. From London to Zurich via the Channel Tunnel, and then through Slovenia to Zagreb overnight. You can return by the same route, or take a ferry to Italy and catch a train via Milan and Paris. If you leave London on Thursday morning you can be in Split by Friday evening. Alternatively you can stop over in Zurich (or Munich), and take a spectacular day time train through Slovenia to Zagreb. From Zagreb you can take a train or bus to Split (Bus is much quicker!) or you can spend a couple of nights enjoying Zagreb and have a mini tour to Plitvice Lakes and enjoy a night in Split as well. Price There are too many options for us to list prices - It will depend on whether you want to travel 2nd or 1st Class, which day of the week you want to go, have a seat or a sleeper bed, take a ferry for part of the route, stop overnight on the way there or the way back, or join a mini-tour to Plitvice Lakes. See below for some sample itineraries and prices. NB we can only book these options in conjunction with a cruise. Most of these trains cannot be booked more than 2-3 months in advance.
